No one was able to participate in the photo, or a video.

Now when you share a question sticker, Instagram users can reply to you using text, a photo, or a video.

If you've noticed, even on Reels you can reply with a video, to a comment.

I just saw it in Metricool and I ran to this newsletter to share. I think the responses cut users short.

These include buttons to: visit a store, website, or portfolio.

I wish this feature was available for more users...

A new feature has come to LinkedIn, that will be especially interesting for creators:

Verified accounts more important than ever

These are automatically included in the page, and now, Elon Musk himself confirms:

I am from the "old" Twitter, just as preference.

The problem?

Since the integration of paid subscriptions, the advantages of this have only increased...

I don't know if Elon Musk has the power in his hands to recover the success of older Twitter features, that no longer dominate the industry...
